Mrs. Feland in Frankfort.

The Frankfort correspondent of the Courier-Journal says of Mrs.
John Feland, who is in Frankfort:

Another member's wife who has arrived at the tail end of the session is Mrs. John Feland, of Hopkinsville, who is possessed of as much winning personality as her gifted husband.

Mrs. Feland has been our friend all along in the person of "Emma," but on this occasion the renowned 'Feland babies' have been left at home. We wanted to see them all and were disappointed at their non-appearance.

NEW YORK GOVERNOR.

What Hughes Learned From
His Father.

Burton J. Hendrick, whose articles on "Great American Fortunes" are known throughout the country, contributes an article on Hughes to the March McClure's. This article unveils an unusual personality and is withal most entertaining reading.
Governor Hughes once remarked facetiously, apropos of current stories of his reserve and coldness, that he hoped a coroner's autopsy would discover something in him beside sawdust and useful information. Mr.
Hendrick has happily forestalled the coroner and gives his readers a glimpse of the Governor of New York State.

Charles E. Hughes was the son of a Welsh clergyman who raised him in the nurture and admonition of the Lord. "At an early age," said the father, "I taught my son that a straight line was the shortest distance between two points," a lesson he has had occasion to use in his public career.

In 1884 Hughes passed the bar examinations with a rating of 99.7-8, attracting the attention of Walter S. Carter, one of New York's most successful lawyers. He became one of "Carter's kids," and married his oldest daughter.

"It is an interesting coincidence

CHARLES E. HUGHES.

that the Carter firm's largest client, when Hughes entered the office, was the New York Life Insurance Company, whose irregularities he afterward so remorselessly exposed. In the main, however, its business, then and afterward, was not derived from corporations. Hughes' talents have never been utilized to make millions for large corporate interests by teaching them how to water stock, capitalize franchises, organize holding companies, and originate the other devices with which the public has been familiarized in recent years.
On the other hand, he has preferred to show old-fashioned merchants how to draw agreements, enforce contracts, and perform other offices which are similarly essential to the maintenance of orderly business.
According to his partner, George W. Schurman, "general retainers, involving his commitment to any and every kind of service, were never accepted by him. He acted upon the principle that independence both of lawyer and client is essential to the ideal relation between them."

Mr. Hendrick has gathered a variety of anecdotes, both interesting and illuminating.

When a man writes as follows don't you think he means it? Mr.
S. G. Williams, Powderly, Texas, says, "I have suffered for years with Kidney and Bladder trouble, using every preparation I came across and taking many prescriptions all without relief until my attention was called to Pineules. After 30 days' trial ($1.00), I am feeling fine. Money refunded if not satisfied. Sold by Anderson-Fowler Drug Co., Incorporated.

Senator Wilhelmi Ill.

Newport, Ky., March 7.—Senator George Wilhelmi, who made a strong fight several days ago in the Senate on behalf of his anti-pool-room bill, is critically ill, the result of overwork. He became ill in Frankfort and was brought to his home here today. His physicians state he is suffering from a complication of troubles and that he will not be able to return to Frankfort during the present session.

Back, Lame Back, Rheumatic pains.
